

AUSTRALIAN mini-MUSIC DIRECTORY

If you're thinking of coming to Australia to see and hear music or if you want to do business with Australian music companies, the accompanying information that we have used to fill this Australian Music Guide is an incredible resource for contacts and sites, Though not nearly as comprehensive as the AustralAsian Music Industry Directory (which at 236 pages in print and online) is the sourcebook for 70 sectors of the industry, it's a great start...

RECORD COMPANIES

The information below is taken from the January 2004 AustralAsian Music Industry Directory which has a huge amount of details on all companies including staff, address, phone, fax, email, genres, artists and labels as well as further information on whether or how they accept submissions.

For your convenience and to conserve space, we have only given name and URL but if you want more highly detailed information, go to the Australian Music Directory at www.immedia.com.au/amid and order the 236 page print edition with 70 categories of music businesses highly detailed. Or subscribe to the current edition online which will give you fortnightly email alert updates as changes are made to the listings.

MAJORS/ MULTINATIONALS

These include the major labels as well as Australian branches of international record companies or Australian labels with overseas operations.

Western Australian Artist Showcase

BD Riley's, 204 East 6th St, Saturday March 20, 3-6 pm

3 pm Saturday, March 20 sees four acts - who've probably travelled farther than any others gathered for South by Southwest - come together at BD Riley's Pub for what will be one of the highlight showcase parties of the festival.

The John Butler Trio, End of Fashion, Tucker B's and Sodastream represent all that is amazing about bands that hail from Western Australia, and demonstrate why the Australian music industry as a whole spends half their life on planes flying across the continent to see the latest "next big thing" from The 'Left Coast'.

Stylistically diverse, it will become apparent to the observer what the common strength of these acts is - their live performance. A result of being so incredibly isolated, they breed acts in Perth with a live presence that is world class, before they ever even cross the Nullarbor (treeless plain) to other cities within Australia.

Another result of the isolation is the camaraderie that is built up in the local music scene. With strong support from the local music industry association

(WAM) and the State, and a common goal to show the rest of the world where the best bands are bred, Perth, Western Australia is frequently referred to as "the new Seattle", or "the new Manchester". And with an amazing diversity that produces talent across all styles from rock to pop, blues to country, hip hop to dance, and all points in between, anyone can find what they're looking for.

Testament to this is the annual WAMi 4-disc Compilation CD set, which in 2003 contained tracks from 64 talented artists. More info about this CD can be obtained through WAM, wamicd@wam.asn.au. Produced for promotional purposes only, this is one compilation that you have to have.

This showcase is being presented by WAM, the Western Australian Music Industry Association, which is the peak industry body representing the local music industry. Among a whole range of different programs, WAM organizes Australia's biggest showcase event (The WAMi Festival and Conference) in February each year, and maintains a database containing over 800 local original acts. See www.wam.asn.au.

So, what will you experience on Saturday afternoon at BD Riley's? A rich musical journey that will take you from the lush double bass and acoustic guitar duo Sodastream; to the commercially oriented indie rock powerhouse that is End Of Fashion; through the bizarre and in your face avante rock of the Tucker B's; to the dreadlocked, message-delivering 12-string roots phenomenon that is the John Butler Trio. You will be picked up, spun around, set down, and left wondering what on earth YOU can do to make things better than they already are.

Believe us, things will be pretty damn good at BD Riley's on Saturday the 20th.

New York, London, Paris. Austin. Everyone will be talking about music from Perth - the most isolated capital city on Earth.

All enquiries should be directed to Paul Bodlovich, WAM Executive Director, at the Australians @ SxSW stand and at 61+4 3800 7962, paul@wam.asn.au.
